1. The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hilton 4,275,667. Hilton discloses a cassette for bank notes. There is disclosed a flexible door (12) that is spring loaded (col 4 lines 15+) to open/close automatically upon the insertion/removal of rods (30) into an associated channel and which contact and press against lugs (29) on the flexible door. The degree of opening of the flexible door (12) is dependent upon the degree of insertion of the rods (30) into the cassette. It is disclosed in column 6 lines 25+ that when the cassette is inserted into a bank note dispenser, the flexible door (12) is automatically opened. Hilton does not specifically disclose that his bank note dispenser is an ATM. However, official notice is taken that ATM machines are known and that bank note dispensers within ATM machines are old and well known. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to use the cassette of Hilton in a known ATM. This would allow the currency notes necessary for operation of the ATM to be preloaded and secured prior to insertion into the ATM. Hilton does not disclose that the lugs (29) have a female receiver. However, male/female connection means are also old and well known. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to provide the lugs (29) of Hilton with a female receiving portion in order to securely receive the male rod (30) thereby ensuring no "slippage" between the rod and lug.

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Howett et al 4,659,008 and Granzow et al 4,529,119 both disclose flexible doors securing cash dispenser cassettes.
